SOVIETS HIT NAZI RAIL HUB

Threaten Mogilev, Last German Rail Center in White Russian Area.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Dec. 6 — Smashing ahead northwest of Propoisk, the Red army today was threatening Mogilev, one of the last important German-held rail centers in White Russia, as other Russian units squeezed Nazi defense lines near Zhlobin and Rogachev in the Gomel area.

A Soviet communique said the Red army hurled back German counterattacks and swept forward northwest of Propoisk to capture the heavily fortified strongholds of Varodel, Bahki and Zabluka.

Front dispatches, telling of deep Russian penetrations virtually from one end of White Russia to the other, said the Germans were beginning to show signs of a lack of reserves and were using engineers as first line troops in some sectors of the front.

To the south in the Kremenchug area, the Russian war bulletin said, Soviet units captured several strong points after fierce hand-to-hand fighting.

The communique said the Nazis were continuing to attack in the Cherkassy area, between Kremenchug and Kiev, but all their assaults were repulsed.

The German radio, in a broadcast recorded by Reuters, said the Russians had broken through the Nazi line south of Cherkassy, but "the greater part of the penetrating force was wiped out."

A German communique said yesterday the Russians had launched new attacks in the Crimea from their bridgehead northeast of Kerch, but were hurled back. Rumanian satellite troops, the Nazi bulletin said, broke through Soviet positions south of Kerch. The Russians made no mention of action in the Crimea.

The Soviet communique said the Germans had landed on Kinburnskaya Kosa, at the mouth of the Dnieper river a few days ago, but the force was wiped out yesterday. The Germans had taken Vorontsov and Pokrovskey Khutara before the Third army launched the counterattack, the communique said.

A Moscow dispatch said the worst snowstorms of the season were sweeping White Russia, making the Red army's advance difficult, but nevertheless the Russians are moving swiftly upon several major objectives.

The dispatch pointed out that with dozens of villages falling easily to the Red army, it is difficult to see how the Germans can sit tight much longer and risk complete encirclement.

FALL FROM HORSE FATAL

By The Associated Press

ZANESVILLE, O., Dec. 6 — Thomas Bery, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Berry of nearby Norwich died today from a fractured skull sustained yesterday when he fell from his horse.

Count Ciano Reported Shot Early Today by Firing Squad

Mussolini's Son-in-Law Said To Have Died at Order of Duce's Puppet Government.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Dec. 6—A Reuters dispatch from the Swiss-Italian frontier said today Count Galeazzo Ciano, former Fascist foreign minister of Italy and Benito Mussolini's son-in-law, was shot this morning by a firing squad, according to reports reaching the frontier.

Mussolini's son-in-law turned against him in the grand council meeting last July which ousted the discredited duce as Italy's dictator.

The reports, which were not confirmed, said Ciano was shot in the back after being accused of high treason and sentenced to death by a special court of Mussolini's "Republican Fascist" government, a German puppet organization. The execution was said to have taken place somewhere in northern Italy.

Story-Book Life

The life of the 40-year-old count was a story-book tale of a rise to right-hand man to Mussolini in the hey-day of Fascism, of great popularity, prestige and wealth, and then, when the regime was tottering, a break with his father-in-law.

By last October, Mussolini's former affection for his esteemed son-in-law had changed until "his only feeling for him is sheer hate," Marshal Pietro Badoglio reported.

For Ciano, at the last and fateful meeting of the Fascist grand council on the night of last July 24 was one of 19 members who voted in favor of Mussolini's resignation. Five voted for the duce.

There was another reason for Ciano's fall from grace—German antipathy for him.

WOMAN KILLED IN CRASH NEAR KENTON

Two Others Seriously Hurt in Auto Accident.

Special to The Star

KENTON, Dec. 6—Mrs. Irene Roberts, 63, wife of John Roberts of three and a half miles east of Mt. Victory, died in Antonio hospital here at 5:40 a. m. yesterday as a result of injuries suffered in a traffic accident Saturday night. Mr. Roberts and a son, Lloyd Roberts, 38, are in the hospital.

The accident happened about 6:15 Saturday night when the family car, driven by another son, Carold, 17, collided with an automobile driven by Jack Brindley, 32, of Kenton.

Police said young Roberts backed the Roberts car from in front of a produce store on South Detroit street into the path of the Brindley auto. The Roberts vehicle was struck at the side and rear and hurled against the Scioto river bridge railing nearby.

Mrs. Roberts suffered multiple fractures. She was in the rear seat of the car. Mr. Roberts, who was seated in the rear of the auto also, suffered body bruises, face lacerations, possible fractures and shock. Lloyd Roberts suffered body bruises, face and head lacerations. Carold, driver of the car, was unhurt. Brindley, driver of the other vehicle, was treated at the hospital for a cut on his chin and released.

Born Jan. 23, 1880, Mrs. Roberts was a native of Hardin county. Surviving besides the husband and sons Lloyd and Carold at home are another son, Leonard Roberts of Huntsville, and five daughters, Mrs. Frank Hinkle of Forest, Mrs. Lester Brenner of Cincinnati, Mrs. Wilson Flinn and Mrs. Charles Gordon of Kenton and Mrs. Edward Moore of Alger.

Funeral services will be conducted Wednesday at 2 p. m. in the Schinderwolf funeral home here by Rev. H. E. Pfister of St. John Evangelical and Reformed church. Burial will be in Fairview cemetery west of Kenton. Friends may call at the home.

AUSSIES PUSH WAREO DRIVE

Beat 3 Jap Counterattacks, Gain in New Guinea Campaign.

By The Associated Press

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Dec. 6—Australian troops with the aid of artillery and air cover pressed steadily toward Wareo on the strategic Huon peninsula of New Guinea today after repulsing three Japanese counterattacks.

The Australians, victors of Sattelberg four miles to the south, turned back the counter thrust Saturday with the help of artillery. Attack planes ripped the Japs' rear positions.

These Australians were spurred on by the likelihood of early support from two other bigger movements also closing in on Wareo's strongly-defended heights. One unit captured Bonga four miles to the east last week and pushed inland, and the other was coming up from the southeast.

Bombers Busy

Bombers of the south and southwest Pacific commands likewise piled their weapons of offensive dropping heavy bomb loads which left fires ablaze on Bougainville and New Britain islands, while the Seventh Army air force started fires at Hollandia in the central Pacific, at Kapingamarangi, only 600 minute miles southeast of the major Japanese base of Truk.

Liberators also bombed Wotje atoll in the enemy-controlled Marshall group and set an oil dump afire on Nauru island southwest of the newly-conquered Gilberts.

The Japanese made their first retaliatory attack on American forces which captured the Gilberts. After three unsuccessful tries, enemy bombers got through to Tarawa atoll, where they caused slight damage and wounded three men, and to Makin, where no damage was done.

Japanese positions just south of the American beachhead at Empress Augusta bay on Bougainville took a 25-ton aerial pounding which wiped out a 250-foot bridge and 40 buildings.

Sixty-three tons of explosives were dumped on Cape Gloucester at the southwestern tip of New Britain island. Fires were started and gun emplacements silenced.

Her death occurred in the home in which she and Mr. Brown were married on July 2, 1893, by Dr. John Hillman, and where this year they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Brown was born at Mansfield on Aug. 17, 1871, to David Henry and Iva Jane Pocock Earnest, natives of Ohio. She was a member of Epworth Methodist church and Circle No. 7 of the

FINAL VICTORY BLOW POSSIBLE THIS WINTER

U. S. and Britain Massing Troops and Weapons for Knockout.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin fixed the time for an Anglo-American invasion of Western Europe at their conference at Teheran, and apparently agreed upon a secondary assault on the continent from the south.

This "Big Three" agreement on final victory strategy, calling for coordinated attacks on three sides of Hitler's European fortress, may now make possible knockout blows against Germany this winter.

The United States and Britain have been massing troops and munitions for many months in preparation for such a vast scale attack, and it seems likely the plans of this conference usually allowed for high strategy decisions.

Those are the main points of military implications noted by Washington observers in the Teheran declaration announced today. Following the conference of the three chief leaders in Iran last week.

Further disclosures about the accomplishments of the momentous meeting are considered possible.

Test On Battlefield

The enemy will have to find out for himself on the battlefields of Europe, however, the time, strength and direction of military actions agreed upon, so any further specific amplification will most likely be of a political nature, though it may include a warning to the German people to...

MARION EXEMPTED FROM 48-HOUR WEEK

Order Held Up Here for Present Because of Layoffs.

Definite word that the Marion labor market area will not be placed on a 48-hour week basis at the present was received today by Fred B. Scherff, Marion USES and WMC official.

It came from the regional office in Cleveland following a careful WMC study of the labor supply in Marion. Changed labor market conditions in Marion resulting from the closing of the Scioto Ordnance Plant and the starting of new industrial activity in Marion will be permitted to work themselves out gradually before any further consideration is given to the 48-hour-week order which has been made in some labor market areas, officials indicated.

Marion business and industrial concerns had been somewhat concerned about the possibility of a 48-hour work week order for this area, for it is understood that all business places would be obliged to join industry is working all employes 48 hours a week unless they obtained special exemption from the order, permitted in some cases. Most Class 2 labor market areas such as Marion, where industries are given contracts only that can be filled in six months without additional employment, are being placed on the 48-hour week.

Today's order exempted both Marion and Mansfield for the time being. New labor studies in coming weeks are expected to determine whether the lengthened week will be necessary in Marion.

Most factories already are on a 47-hour week basis, but business places generally are on 40 hours.

THREE CHIEFS AGREE ON OPERATIONS TO SMASH NAZI ARMY

By The Associated Press

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 6—President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Joseph Stalin have agreed completely on "the scope and timing of operations" to smash the German army from three sides, an announcement signed by the three statesmen at an nine-day meeting in Teheran, Iran, and released here today disclosed.

The allied leaders also charted a peace era in which all nations would be invited to join "a world family of democratic nations" based on the reaffirmed principles of the Atlantic charter.

The history-making conference of the heads of the world's most powerful military and political combine was held in the Iranian capital from Nov. 28 to Dec. 1, attended also by scores of top-flight military chieftains and diplomats from the United States, Britain and Russia.

The combined British and American general staffs subsequently returned to Cairo, scene of the Nov. 22-26 meeting of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek with President Roosevelt and the prime minister and staged concentrated planning sessions from last Friday through today.

Churchill joined in these and other sessions, leading to the probability other disclosures of paramount importance are still to come.

President Roosevelt's whereabouts since the Teheran conference were not disclosed.

Two Teheran declarations signed simply "Roosevelt, Stalin, Churchill, and dated Dec. 1 announced these results:

War—"Our military staffs have joined in our round table discussions and we have concerted our plans for the destruction of the German forces. We have reached complete agreement as to the scope and timing of operations which will be undertaken from the east, west and south.

"The common understanding which we have reached guarantees that victory will be ours.

"No power on earth can prevent our destroying the German armies by land, their U-boats by sea and their war plants from the air. Our attacks will be relentless and increasing."

"Peace"—We are sure that our concord will make it an enduring peace. We recognize fully the supreme responsibility resting upon us and all the United Nations to make a peace which will command the good will of the overwhelming masses of the peoples of the world and banish the...

...ourage and terror of war for many generations.

"We shall seek the cooperation and active participation of all nations, large and small, whose peoples in heart and mind are dedicated as are our own peoples, to the elimination of tyranny and slavery, oppression and intolerance. We will welcome them as they may choose to come into a world family of democratic nations."

The concluding paragraph of one declaration devoted to the status of Iran as an ally of the three nations apparently was the key to the envisaged "world family of democratic nations."

After expressing respect for Iran's independence and territorial integrity, and promising economic aid to that country which has facilitated the flow of allied supplies to Russia, the three leaders said:

"They (the United States, Britain and Russia) count upon the participation of Iran together with all other peace-loving nations in the establishment of international peace, security and prosperity after the war in accordance with the principles of the Atlantic charter, to which all four governments have continued to subscribe."

The Atlantic charter declaration by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill after their historic sea rendezvous in August, 1940, set out these general allied principles and post-war aims:

1—They seek no territorial or other aggrandizement.

2—No territorial changes that do not accord with the "freely expressed wishes of the peoples concerned."

3—Respect for the right of all peoples to choose their own form of government, restoration of "sovereign rights and self-government" to those "forcibly deprived of them."

4—Endeavor, "with due respect for existing obligations" to promote a better distribution of raw materials and trade to all states, "great or small, victor or vanquished."

5—Full collaboration among nations in the economic field in order to improve labor standards and social security.

6—After the final destruction of the Nazi tyranny," a peace established to assure all men "freedom from fear and want."

7—Freedom of the seas for all nations.

8—Abandonment of the use of force and disarmament of nations "which threaten, or may threaten, aggression outside of their frontiers" pending establishment of "a wider and permanent system of social security."

Dispatches from Teheran said the conference atmosphere was

Roosevelt Gives Speeches To American Soldiers in Persia

By The Associated Press

TEHERAN, Iran, Dec. 2—(Delayed)—President Roosevelt made two informal speeches today to United States soldiers at Camp Amirabad here, telling them of his meetings with Stalin and Churchill, praising their work here, and wishing them an early return home.

He said he and Stalin and Churchill had made progress in their effort "to plan for a world for us and our children when war would cease to be a necessity . . . but of course the first thing is to win the war . . . And all of you who are here and farther south in Iran can always remember you have taken a very necessary and very useful part in winning the war."

Speaking to a large body of men after an inspection, the President said:

"Officers and men:

"I seem at this moment to be thoroughly supplied with the weapons of war (two microphones).

"If you had said to me or I had said to you three years ago that we would meet in Iran today, we would have probably said that we were completely crazy.

"I got here four days ago to meet with the marshal of Soviet Russia and the prime minister of England to try to do two things.

"The first was to lay military plans for cooperation between the three nations looking toward the winning of the war just as fast as we possibly can, and I think we have made progress toward that end. The other purpose was to talk over world conditions after the war, to try to plan for a world for us and our children when war would cease to be a necessity.

Cites Progress

"We have made great progress in that, also, but of course the first thing is to win the war and I want to tell you that you, all of you individually and collectively,

[illegible] of transporting a presidential nominee and his party [illegible] country in the middle of [illegible] will be one of the [illegible] of topics of discussion when Republican national committeemen and women gather next in Chicago Jan. 10 and 11.

The Republicans are toying with the idea of having their nominee announce that hereafter he does not wish to place added strain on an overburdened transportation system by making [illegible] to a half dozen personal appearances for major speeches.

Naturally, the new idea will dictate policy of the next, but there is prevalent a feeling that the old method of [illegible] a special train and taking along an entourage would have a discouraging reaction among the public.

The Democrats also will face the problem of physical fatigue although it may be somewhat reduced for them if President Roosevelt is the nominee.

The President has been making personal appearances around the country for years and could easily conduct a campaign over the radio and by short [illegible]

While the Democrats have been urging a short campaign with a late convention, largely on the assumption that Mr. Roosevelt's age may be a campaign issue among the Republicans, by delay the date of their convention beyond the usual period of mid-June

Chairman Harrison E. Spangler of the national committee is known to feel the Republicans ought to have their candidate at the usual time but perhaps not start their intensive campaign until sometime in September.

The time of their national convention, as well as the place, will be fixed by the Republicans at the Chicago meeting. The Democrats will make the same decisions at a session of their national committee here Jan. 22.

Installations of Telephones now subject to delays

★ ★ ★ ★

Because of shortages of telephone facilities there may be delays—in some cases considerable delays—on installations of telephone service.

★ ★ ★ ★

Installing telephones involves three kinds of facilities—switching mechanisms, telephone lines and telephone instruments.

Serious shortages have developed in one or more of these types of facilities.

In order to release vital war materials, manufacture of everything listed in the above kinds of facilities has been limited almost entirely to meeting the needs of war or where public health and safety are involved.

The shortages of telephone facilities will prevent us, in most cases, from making installations promptly. Applicants for service and subscribers who move to homes in other localities will in effect, be put on a "waiting" list and will get service just as soon as we can possibly furnish it.

★ ★ ★ ★

Every effort has been made and will be made to serve as many people as possible—and as quickly as possible. We regret sincerely any inconvenience or hardship that may arise as a result of the shortages of telephone facilities. We are sure that you'll agree our fighting men have first call on the materials needed.

How Germany is growing stronger

YOU MAY THINK Germany is growing weaker. But—

In many military respects, she is actually growing stronger. Here's how:

1. As Germany's lines of communication grow shorter, her military might will gather power, like a coiling spring. The Nazi armies that fought so furiously as far from home as Stalingrad and the Caucasus will fight even more furiously as the fighting approaches Poland and Germany proper.

2. Today Germany has 3 times as many combat divisions as she had when she attacked Poland 4 years ago. The divisions lost at Stalingrad have been replaced, and Germany has raised or reequipped a total of 60 new divisions. All told, Germany has 300 divisions!

3. The Germans now have 35,000,000 war workers in Nazi-dominated lands, as contrasted with 23,000,000 at the start of the war.

4. Germany can make ends meet on industrial manpower. She expects to add 3,000,000 more war workers by Christmas in an all-out mobilization drive.

5. Allied air bombings have been affective, but the vast industrial power of Hitler's Europe is still high.

6. American officers returning from the front say that German prisoners are just as cocky and determined as ever.

7. German technicians are working feverishly on the development of new and deadlier weapons. One of these — the "magnetic" torpedo — has already begun to take its toll of lives and materials in the Battle of the Atlantic. Another, a rocket gun, has devastating fire power.

Nobody's trying to scare you. We're going to win this war. But the toughest fighting is still ahead — and War Bond buying must keep pace with the fighting!

The more men and the more money we can pour in now, the quicker we win. Buy an extra Bond — today!

We Expect Too Much

THERE is no question about the importance of the meeting at Cairo, or the new conference with Marshal Stalin in Iran, or wherever it is taking place.

Yet, due to the circumstances of these momentous gatherings, chiefly the almost international suspense created by the secrecy surrounding them, the results are likely to seem disappointing.

In every case the decisions reached concern long-range objectives. There have been, so far, no immediate repercussions of major magnitude from the military plans developed, which are more tangible than the general policies formulated, do not become immediately evident. The trouble is that we expect too much.

When dealing with matters of such tremendous scope as the waging of global warfare, spokesmen for governments have no power to produce quick results and only limited power to make sensational decisions. They are as completely the pawns of reality and limitations as the people who want to think history can be made by wishful thinking.

This is important only as it affects the future of the international conference method of conducting international affairs. It is probable that in the years immediately ahead, such conferences will be held frequently. They promise much for the security of the world, depending on the vision of the conferees and on the attitudes of the people they represent.

When spokesmen for the United States can meet with spokesmen for Great Britain, Russia, China and whatever other nations may be salvaged from the wreckage of this war as a matter of routine, the omen for international stabilization built on mutual understanding will shine with unprecedented brightness.

Ups and Downs

OPA Administrator Bowles thoughtfully advises consumers to keep their appetites under control, in connection with a reduction of point values on beef. The increased supply making this possible is here today and may be gone tomorrow. That's the idea.

Point rationing for foodstuffs is almost a year old, and consumers have the idea by this time. They have learned to count points first, money second. They know how advantageous it is to be part of a large family. They know that persons living alone are in close to desperate circumstances. They realize that children are worth their weight in coupons, because children at a tender age do not begin to eat as much as adults.

They are aware that in some instances, such as the butter shortage, ration points are less important than the supply of butter on hand when the points are offered. They could tell Mr. Bowles, if asked, that nothing deters panic buying like the sight of a supply on hand, and they could tell him, also if asked, that equalization of buying power by rationing has resulted in many buyers hoarding what they can't use but feel they must buy in order to keep abreast of their rationing coupons.

They are taking the ups and downs of rationing in their stride, as part of the war, and learning as they go. And chiefly what they are learning is that any attempt to deal with their eating problems from Washington, D. C., while it may be absolutely essential as a wartime expedient, is bound to be a revelation that without the confidence and compliance of the people it couldn't be done. Administrator Bowles seems to realize that, but it would have been better if he had skipped his advice about keeping our appetites under control.

Federal Sales Tax—R.I.P.

A FEDERAL sales tax will rest in peace if the next election is over, perhaps longer. A combination of opposition from the Roosevelt administration and indifference by congress killed it.

The objective merits of a sales tax are not affected by this outcome. A federal sales tax would tap the spending rate of the citizens who have the bulk of the war boom national income and are least affected by income taxes. It appears roundly at a 10 per cent rate it would yield up to seven billion dollars, according to U. S. treasury estimates. Properly administered, it would increase in productivity from year to year. It would produce revenue and put a penalty on spending.

It is clear, however, from the treasury's past performance and present intentions that by the time a sales tax had been tailored to the Roosevelt administration's political requirements and objections it would consist chiefly of exemptions. Its productivity would be sacrificed to the theory that taxation is not for revenue but reform. Its administration would be encumbered with the customary stampede of "refugees and questionnaire quiz kids. It would be tampered and tested beyond recognition as the kind of tax used successfully by Ohio, Michigan and other states. Under two or three years' test it would prove the best possible argument for the federal sales tax issue.

Military Decisions at Cairo Believed To Point Toward China As Major Power.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—[illegible] conference at Cairo [illegible] Chiang Kai-shek [illegible] Roosevelt [illegible] Churchill [illegible] Stalin [illegible] Iran [illegible] Japan will be [illegible] reduced to an inferior [illegible] power by an allied victory. The great point of the announcements, therefore, was somewhat political. But military decisions are apt to be something else again.

The political implication was that China will dominate the Pacific Asia territory in the post-war era. Certainly there will be no other nation to balance or offset its power, with Japan destroyed and India weak and split. As for the Indies, Russia decides to take a hand—or not, as may.

China as a Power

The danger of complete Chinese domination, of course, is that it may [illegible] an Asiatic bloc [illegible] force of great power.

The authorities here, however, say China is too weak politically, economically, and financially, that the assignment of this power to her could not possibly take her up to become a world force for perhaps 20 to 25 years. Indeed, most Chinese authorities in the anti-Axis nations expect financial collapse after the war.

But, on the military side, the Cairo agreements will prove to be something else again. A brief two-paragraph press association dispatch from India 24 hours later, may have furnished the background significance. It reported that the road we are opening up into China through the Naga hills in northern Burma, is being called "the road to Tokyo." Obviously, Chiang Kai-shek is soon to get greatly increased supplies to enable him to take the offensive on land. (He would not have much to do with the sea offensive, which already has been launched by us.)

Jap Strength in China

Strength of Jap forces now in China is about 25 divisions, roughly one-third of the entire Japanese army. On only two Chinese fronts has there been any real fighting—one in the Tungting Lake area, up the Yangtze. Offensives were launched there last summer, and again recently, but the Japs have been unable to reduce that army and its power has remained static.

Barring a battleline in the central American sense of that word, has been established, nothing comparable to Italy for instance. Both sides merely occupy various disconnected villages and vantage points. Their operations resemble guerilla warfare, foraging for fodder, and reconnaissance in force.

The second active front is in Yunnan province where similar fighting conditions prevail.

As the Japs have not been able to reinforce here either, they are not now putting up even the threat of expanding their hold. Whether this means they are unable to do better or are themselves storing the means to meet the coming Chinese offensive, is anybody's guess. Probably both are partly correct, but I suspect the Japs are far less efficient than now popularly supposed.

Stalin's Position

Stalin stayed away from Cairo because of his still existing pact of friendship with Japan. But the Japs have not exhibited any such similar faith in their understanding with Moscow.

They still have 22 divisions, also roughly one-third of their army, facing Russia, either nearby in Manchukuo, or as reserves in Korea, and protecting the mainland at home. If they trusted Russia and put those troops into China, they might be able to launch an offensive.

But the current dispersal of their strength (the final third of their army being spread through Burma, Dutch East Indies, etc.) certainly leaves "the road to Tokyo" wide open for the land offensive planned in Egypt.

The facial implication of the Moscow and China agreements that Russia is not interested in Asia is, however, misleading. The Russians have some claims on Manchukuo which, apparently, are unsettled.

But the Communist army is still fighting alongside Chiang Kai-shek in defense of his homeland, and the Chinese always have been closer to the Russians than any other nation, except perhaps India.

Roosevelt Speeches Good but OPA Orders Utter Confusion.

By SCHUYLER ALLMAN
AP Features Writer

MEASURED by a new yardstick of readability, President Roosevelt's speeches smack of genius and Office of Price Administration regulations, for instance, smack of utter confusion.

The yardstick tells whether you have been writing over your readers' heads. It is the product of ten years of research by the division of psychology of the Institute of Educational Research at Teachers' College, Columbia University, New York.

Dr. Irving Lorge, division director who invented the formula, says that the President in his carefully prepared speeches shows genius in putting his thoughts into words "that those with a seventh grade education can understand."

Dr. Lorge applies his test, with assistance of calculator.

OPA Trouble

Dr. Lorge was summoned as a consultant by OPA to find what was the trouble behind a lot of OPA trouble—trying to get people to understand price regulations. The educator brought out his readability yardstick and applied it to a batch of regulations. "They came out so bad I told them they just would not work."

He says he proposed that OPA pitch all legal terminology into the waste basket. OPA instructions now are getting simpler.

Dr. Lorge has put a number of writings familiar to everyone to the test. They all score excellently. Possibly that is why they are familiar to everyone.

The American Bible society's version of the 23rd Psalm, beginning "The Lord is my Shepherd," could be readily understood by anyone with seven and a half grades of schooling.

Lincoln's immortal Gettysburg address was couched in language so fifth graders could grasp and its selected excerpts from "Alice in Wonderland" were simple enough for anyone with only four and a half grades of education.

The Armed Special Training unit's [illegible] its texts. With the Lorge formula it found its books used to teach reading and writing to draftees had been written for those with a fourth or fifth grade education!

The Lorge formula employs a list of 769 easy words. These words are those that appear on both a list of the 1,000 words common to adult speech and a list of the 1,000 most common words used by students in [illegible].

Test Method

For [illegible] a passage of [illegible] 300 to 400 words is taken. The number of words in the sentences is counted, the number of syllables and the number of prepositional phrases.

A [illegible] is made by the [illegible] of the sample by the [illegible] the result by 13.01 [illegible] of the number of words [illegible] these 769 do not appear [illegible] the 1,000 by the total number [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] by 1.6126. The grand [illegible] figure that approximates [illegible] schooling a person must have to understand at least three-fourths of the sample you selected.

The numbers .07, 13.01, 10.73 and 1.6126 may seem arbitrary, but they are mathematical values worked out by Dr. Lorge. Unless you are a mathematician you just have to accept them on faith.

(P. S. Incidentally, you need 7½ grades of schooling to understand the story.)

PYRAMIDS — PAST AND PRESENT

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Wednesday, Dec. 6, 1933. Marion banks prepared to mail Christmas savings checks totaling $43,000 to 1,175 persons.

Following the end of national constitutional prohibition which had been given a 14-year trial, officials immediately started to study what tax revenues could be derived from the newly-legalized spirits. Will Rogers, commenting on the situation in his daily news dispatch, said, "Talk about the noble experiment. It's just starting; every state is in doubt as to how their liquor will be handled. Say, it's not how the state will handle its liquor, it's how the folks will handle theirs. States are going to have a scandal over the sale of it, and politicians will fight over the taxes on it. But anyhow, the first week will be the hardest."

A news dispatch from Athens, Greece, said Samuel Insull, who had fled to that country to escape extradition proceedings, would be asked to leave that country Dec. 31 when his police permit expired. He was wanted on charges of embezzlement in connection with his vast utilities empire.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Williams of West Walnut street had as guests Mr. Williams' sister, Mrs. B. P. Hannum of Bellefontaine.

The Wednesday Night Dance club held a dance in Schwinger's hall with Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Bachman heading the committee in charge of plans. On the committee with them were Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Bray, Dr. and Mrs. T. H. Sutherland, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Axe, Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Merchant, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Hane and Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Allen.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Thursday, Dec. 6, 1923. President Coolidge delivered a message to congress in person, announcing his policies and declaring that the paramount issue was reduction of taxes. He gave unqualified indorsement to the Mellon reduction program and announced opposition to a soldiers' bonus.

Mrs. Mary E. Uncapher, 89, died at her home on Bennett street.

Annual report of the state auditor showed that Marion county's average revenue receipts for public schools were $90 for each child enrolled in the schools during the year 1921-22. The county ranked twelfth in the 88 counties of the state, in which the average revenue per pupil was $88.

St. Mary High school basketball team defeated the alumni team 10-8 on the Marion Market floor. In the high school lineup were Blocksom, C. Irvin, Navin, Kraft and W. Irvin, while players for the alumni were Gillespie, Iervine, Korte, Kruskamp and O'Connell.

Wayside lodge of Odd Fellows elected officers headed by H. B. Poor as noble grand. Women of the Moosheart Legion also held an election, naming a corps of officers headed by Mrs. Laura Kraus as senior regent.

The WASPS Making Good

No Longer Need for Hush About Women Fliers for Army.

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—Just why the Army Air Force has kept its women flyers under censorship wraps for so long is one of those minor capital mysteries.

More than a year ago, the Women's Auxiliary Ferrying Service (WAAFS) was active but very little was said about it. At Camp Davis, N. C., nearly 200 WASPS (Women's Airforce Service Pilots), an outgrowth of the WAAFS) are doing some of the toughest combat flying known—all women trained under the direction of well-known Aviatrix Jacequeline Cochran.

Before many weeks, there will be at least 500 women flyers in the WASPS. About 600 more will be in training at Sweetwater and Houston, Tex., and 1,000 additional will be awaiting training assignments. That accounts for more than one half of the estimated 4,000 eligible women flyers in the country and constitutes one of the most surprising service records in the war.

After a lot of off-the-record queries, I've come to the conclusion that the reluctance to give flying dames their due was:

(1) Fear that they wouldn't make good and get the bird for even inaugurating the program;

(2) An innate reluctance on the part of the men, both pilots and ground crews, to concede that women flyers were capable of handling the Air Force's gruelling non-combatant assignments.

IN view of this, Jacequeline Cochran and Nancy Harkness Love, director of the WASPS, said not a word. However, it is now safe to talk a little. The girls have proved themselves; the men have accepted them.

A few days ago I talked to a veteran fighter pilot back from the South Pacific. He had been down to Camp Davis on a lecture mission.

"I had about the same opinion of women pilots that some taxi drivers have of women motorists," he said. "Then one day, I was standing on the sands north of Camp Davis, watching anti-aircraft drill. One of those little baby carriages was towing a target sleeve 300 yards behind and a pattern of ack-ack 100 yards square was being poured into it. That pilot had a dirty assignment. I know. A konkout, a loss of flying speed, a sudden down or up draft, and that little plane would have been in the soup. When it was over, I breathed easier and said 'nice flying' to the officer who was with me. He said: 'Yeah, pretty good for a 22-year-old girl who left flying school in June.'

"I was dumbfounded."

THE WASPS are women 18 to 34 years of age. They have to have at least 35 solo hours before they can apply for training. At Davis, there are stenographers, school teachers, chemists, newspaperwomen, bookkeepers and a few just plain housewives.

They not only tow targets, they do tricky night flying to provide practice for the searchlight crews, dodge all over the sky for flack aiming drills; and in general everything there is to be done in non-combat service. They live in barracks, but unlike the WACs they aren't a part of the Army. They get $150 a month base pay in training and $250 in service, out of which they pay barracks rental and officers' mess fee. Their off-duty uniforms are in the making and will be snappy and government-issued.

Train Gunners To Miss

By The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — Officers of the Navy's anti-aircraft training school instruct fledgling gunners deliberately to miss the practice target, a red rayon sleeve towed behind a slow-moving old navy plane.

The idea is that enemy bombers will be traveling at twice the speed of the target here, and that if the boys learn to shoot ahead of the target as it moves toward them—give it a good "lead"—they won't waste any fire in the wake of an attacking dive bomber later.

Wheat for Needy

By The Associated Press

BUENOS AIRES — Up to 100,000 tons of wheat will be distributed to needy Argentine citizens as a government measure to combat increased living costs. The grain is part of the 1942-43 crop surplus not needed for exportation.

Sixty-six million bushels of rice were produced in Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas and California in 1942.

Slight Argument

An Editor Who Reacts [illegible] Tries To Pick a Fla[illegible] We Told You About Fla[illegible]

By DAMON RUNYON

WARD GREENE, erudite exec[illegible] Features Syndicate, one of [illegible] is the examination of my daily [illegible] release for publication as a sort [illegible] sanitary measure to protect [illegible] issue with me on the flamingo.

I thought at first his comments [illegible] in the interest of ornithological [illegible] and they wind up in glorification [illegible] Munroe, an old-time American [illegible] venture stories for boys. Mr. Greene [illegible] in his own right, remarks moodily [illegible] is now forgotten but that he was [illegible] writer of his kind who ever lived.

Let us take up this debate in proper [illegible] I said the flamingo is not native [illegible] Mr. Greene says I was on a [illegible] mean the flamingo does not breed [illegible] the wilds of Florida, but that I am [illegible] mean it is not a native bird and [illegible] like the pheasant or the English [illegible]

He says there are two standard [illegible] Birds of America and the Book of Audubon Prints. The latter contains a [illegible] of the scarlet flamingo as Audubon [illegible] seen it in the Florida swamps. [illegible] America definitely states that [illegible] scarlet flamingo did breed and [illegible] Florida coast and among the keys [illegible]

IF THAT is true, the bird must [illegible] out of there long ago, because [illegible] flamingoes you can find in Florida [illegible] those imported by the late Joe [illegible] Cuba for Hialeah Park. Mr. Greene [illegible] born, suggests rather crustily that [illegible] birds departed when they saw [illegible] moving into Dade county and [illegible] places.

I do not care to contradict [illegible] authorities as Mr. Greene quote[illegible] under the impression that the [illegible] is indigenous to southern Asia and [illegible] that those once found in the southern [illegible] the United States, up to South Ca[illegible] as I said before, a light vermilion [illegible] edged wings. The first birds Wide[illegible] were pinkish and I do not believe [illegible] flamingo in the Hialeah flock to this [illegible]

However, it could be that some [illegible] flamingo did make Florida its [illegible] ago. Mr. Greene quotes Frank M. [illegible] as writing of its nesting and breeding [illegible] in the Bahamas in 1904 and the [illegible] the Bahamas to Florida and the fact [illegible] matically and otherwise the two [illegible] alike argues that birds that would [illegible] one place would very likely [illegible] play.

MR. GREENE admits that the real sensation [illegible] his objection to my statement [illegible] lection of Kirk Munroe's "The Flame Feather," which he read in his [illegible] yarn dealt with the first Spanish [illegible] of Florida. The hero was a Flo[illegible] who always wore a flamingo feather [illegible] causing the palefaces to bite the [illegible] Greene favors him above Deerfoot [illegible] Cooper's Indian braves.

He places Munroe between O. [illegible] the founders of the "Rover Boys" [illegible] Boys" series. He was contemporaneous with [illegible] man, Henty, but Mr. Greene [illegible] far better writer than Henty. He [illegible] readers American history in fiction [illegible] gave the west, Florida, the Mississippi, Grand Banks, the Indian wars, the [illegible] oil and mining and of railroading.

He carried his readers everywhere [illegible] Alaska with the gold rush, [illegible] South American and Russian-Japanese [illegible] the arctic. He wrote of the [illegible] Spanish main, of the bicycling [illegible] ca of the conquest of Mexico, [illegible] Texas. He was one of the most [illegible] ers who ever lived and his [illegible] was almost as remarkable. I [illegible] Greene's memory of the Munroe [illegible]

They Get Paid for It

By Truman Twill

He would like to see some [illegible] says in a low voice, and when she [illegible] shoo-case and asks him to repeat [illegible] looks in the plucked eyebrows [illegible] tinctly he wants to look at [illegible] N-I-G-H-T-G-O-W-N-S and they [illegible] wife who is about so wide and [illegible] and is a mother several times over [illegible] heard saying not long ago to [illegible] nightgowns.

She smiles faintly, rummages [illegible] pile of fluff and flips out some[illegible] like the flags of the United Nations [illegible] here is a very pretty number [illegible] any idea what size his missus [illegible] out his hands as if measuring [illegible] so but she is something like this [illegible] has a girlish figure in spite of [illegible] several times over.

She rummages around some more [illegible] up with something on the sale [illegible] someone has spent a lot of time [illegible] in the top and then sewing [illegible] he knows right away the labor [illegible] terrific. He suggests his wife be [illegible] happier if she had a good substitute [illegible] instead of a floosy one and she [illegible] says it could be exchanged if [illegible] like it.

Without knowing the size [illegible] going to be risky in any event, [illegible] his wife is about so wide and [illegible] which is about a little wider [illegible] and is not quite so high and [illegible] up a nightgown in front of [illegible] quick whether it was too big [illegible] she does and he says it is too [illegible] rummages around and unfolds [illegible] looks like a parachute and he [illegible] is more like it and will shrink [illegible] for size, too.

He calculates an extra few [illegible] inches turned up at the bottom [illegible] can show him the same thing [illegible] or that other color, that color [illegible] flesh but which probably has [illegible] fined name by this time, he pays [illegible] a deal. And she says the name [illegible] tea rose and for him not to [illegible] all it is only Christmas and [illegible] wait on the rest of the trade [illegible] have a new nightgown, or a [illegible] dozen."

He says he will take only [illegible] Christmas he can buy another [illegible] all right she will have [illegible] pretty for him and he says [illegible] it out thanks and she looks [illegible] mumbles that he thought for [illegible] buying something for himself [illegible] apologies and she says that [illegible] him to wait right there and he [illegible] says he will and sweats it out [illegible] ped package comes back and [illegible] and he thanks her and flees [illegible] alive into the great outdoors [illegible] Christmas.

A deduction of 160,000,000 bushels to cover normal domestic consumption and seed requirements leaves a balance of 280,000,000 bushels for increased feed within the country and for export or carryover into the 1944-45 season."

Recent reports have stated the Commodity Credit Corp. has purchased some of this Argentine wheat for shipment to this country to ease the tight feed situation. However, the difficulty involved in shipping grain here is believed responsible for keeping down total imports.

Who Owns the Railroads?

BIG BANKERS? With white ribbing on their vests? And heavy loops of gold watch chain?

Guess again! Think of a small brick house in a whole row of brick houses in a large city in Ohio or Illinois. Think of a large stone mansion on a Pennsylvania hillside, a place for old folks to go to when they're left alone in the world. Think of hospitals in Indiana and Wisconsin, colleges in Virginia and Washington, insurance companies in New York, and Massachusetts and Minnesota.

Think of a cross-section of American life. Now you're getting warm. If ever there was a public property—in the sense of widespread ownership—it's our American railroads.

Here are the facts about a typical railroad—the Chesapeake and Ohio.

275,083 shares of its stock are owned by colleges, hospitals, churches, charitable institutions and insurance companies.

40,496 of its common stockholders own 50 shares or less. These represent approximately 70 per cent of the total common stockholders.

These people live in every state of the union and in its territories. They come from nearly every walk of life, and include employees of the road, teachers, lawyers, business men, stenographers, farmers, men in the Army and Navy—people who live "just around the corner" from you.

In some countries the people have not been enterprising enough to build and maintain their own railroads. And the government has had to do it for them. With us the citizen and not the state has been the force behind our railroads. We have preferred the progress that comes from free competition to the stagnation that accompanies political patronage and bureaucracy.

This system has worked. In the face of the greatest emergency ever to strike this country, the railroads of America have proved more able than ever before to meet the task imposed on them. With consideration for their welfare in the future, they will meet post-war tasks in the same way.

In short, the railroads could be in no better hands than in the hands of the American people. For they, in the long run, must be served.

Big Three Has Power To Enforce Conference Edicts

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

There's one certainty in ... nation of the ... that Germany has ... can escape connection with the ... terms of the allied conferences ... and that is that the Big Three—... America, Russia and the British ... Commonwealth of nations—have ... the power to enforce any edict ... no matter how extreme, which ... they may lay ...

The allied resources are ... those of the enemy like a mountain ... an over a mole hill. And the United Nations now have the actual equipment to get ahead with the job.

We have to make one reservation here. Our resources aren't sufficiently developed at the moment so that we can deliver a quick knockout to both Germany and Japan simultaneously. But we have the strength to hold the one while we smash the other speedily. There's no longer any question about that.

Hitler Sees Danger

Since Nazicom provides the greater immediate menace, it must be crushed first. Herr Hitler recognizes his danger fully, as is clear from the frantic efforts Propaganda Minister Joe Goebels and his dummies are making to blind the German public to the truth.

The fuehrer is fighting like a rat in a corner, and like a doomed rat he is highly dangerous. We shouldn't overlook that. Despite the fact that it now is clear he can't escape, he may do a lot of damage before we crush his life out. Berlin is persistently threatening to employ a secret weapon in retaliation for the allied bombing of Germany, and the Nazi radio says the German high command "intends by one fell, drastic stroke to end the unbridled mass murder ... adding that "mankind is not far from the point where it can at will blow up half the globe."

That sounds like tall talk—but we shouldn't dismiss it as such, for these are days not only of tall talk but for tall deeds. The Germans may have a secret weapon which may cause much death and destruction. We can take it for granted that they haven't anything that will win the war for them, but they still may inflict grievous hurt.

Rocket Gun—Gas?

What sort of secret weapon have they—if any? Well, several possibilities have been a matter of speculation. For instance, there's been much talk of a new long-distance rocket gun of vast power. Then, too, there is always the chance that the Nazis might resort to the use of poison gas as a final fling, although one would think they would be deterred by the certainty of terrible retaliation in kind. All the major belligerents are fully equipped with new poison gases more awful than anything yet tried in war.

In any event, it shouldn't be long now before we know what Hitler has up his sleeve for his final trick. He will have to use it soon, since the allies patently are rushing for the kill. There's a speed-up on all fronts.

The Red armies are flinging themselves with renewed fury on the invaders along the eastern front, and today's dispatches show increasing danger to Hitler's line in White Russia and to the north. The Muscovites are aiming to turn his northern flank in the Baltic states—a catastrophe for him.

Pressure Continues

Down in Italy the American Fifth army and the British Eighth are ripping into the German winter line in a fresh offensive. The allies are bent on blasting open a road to Rome, and are making progress in fierce fighting. There is no let-up in the terrific bombing which the American and British air forces are inflicting on the Reich. And plans for the invasion of France are being pushed vigorously.

... extreme cordiality. The ... declaration by the three ... leaders explained:

"We came here with hope and determination. We leave here ... friends in fact, in spirit and in purpose.

"It was the first time President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin had met.

On the first day of the conference Stalin accompanied only by Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov, walked up the steps of the Russian embassy compound, which was the President's residence during his stay. He left Monday talking in an aside-room with Harry L. Hopkins, the President's official adviser, and strode on alone to come face to face with the American leader who has flown thousands of miles across ocean and desert for the rendezvous further cementing allied unity in war and peace.

It was believed to be the first time Stalin had left Russia since the Communist revolution in 1917.

The Russian embassy conference area, the Teheran itself, swarmed with Russian tommy-gunner guards.

Security measures were heightened because it was learned a ... per of German saboteurs had been dropped by parachute in ... a few weeks before the big ... arrived. Most of them were reported captured.

One of the ceremonious highlights of the conference was the presentation by Prime Minister Churchill of the "Sword of Stalingrad" to Premier Stalin—a British recognition of the Russian heroes who turned the Nazi tide at Stalingrad last winter.

Text of Statement

The text of the main declaration by the three leaders.

"We, the President of the United States of America, the Prime Minister of Great Britain and the Premier of the Soviet Union, have met these four days past in this capital of our ally Iran and have shaped and confirmed our common policy. We expressed our determination that our nations shall work together in the war and in the peace that will follow.

"As to the war, our military staffs have joined in our round-table discussions and we have concerted our plans for the destruction of the German forces. We have reached complete agreement as to the scope and timing of operations which will be undertaken from the east, west and south.

"The common understanding which we have here reached guarantees that victory will be ours.

"And as to the peace, we are sure that our concord will make it an enduring peace. We recognize fully the supreme responsibility resting upon us and all the United Nations to make a peace which will command the good will of the overwhelming masses of the peoples of the world and banish the scourge and terror of war for many generations.

"With our diplomatic advisers we have surveyed the problems of the future. We shall seek the co-operation and active participation of all nations, large and small, whose peoples in heart and mind are dedicated, as are our own peoples, to the elimination of tyranny and slavery, oppression and intolerance. We will welcome them as they may choose to come into a world family of democratic nations.

"No power on earth can prevent our destroying the German armies by land, their U-boats by sea and their war plants from the air. Our attacks will be relentless and increasing.

"From these friendly conferences we look with confidence to the day when all the peoples of the world may live free lives untouched by tyranny and according to their varying desires and their own consciences.

"We came here with hope and determination. We leave here friends in fact, in spirit and in purpose."

"SIGNED AT TEHERAN, DECEMBER 1, 1943. "ROOSEVELT, STALIN, CHURCHILL"

Details Not Disclosed

Details of the military decisions were not disclosed, but dispatches from Teheran said there was no talk of "a second front" circulating at the conference—an indication that that subject already had been disposed of except for final details.

Nor was anything specific concerning a multitude of post-war problems, such as the Russian-Polish boundaries, dealt with in the general declarations except for the reference to the principles of the Atlantic charter and the desire to recruit a world wide "family of democratic nations."

The statement on Iran spoke of post-war "conferences of international agencies" to deal with all economic matters.

The "surrender or die" ultimatum, which some had expected, was not forthcoming. Instead, the big three calmly and confidently told Germany they were going to crush her armed forces in a three-sided assault and multiply the devastating air raids on her home soil.

Look To Future

Pointing to the possibility of a postwar confederation of nations, the chiefs of the three great allied powers said:

"We will welcome [illegible] choose to come into the family of Democratic [illegible]

REPORTED EXECUTED

COUNT CIANO

February, it was widely reported the Nazis disliked and distrusted him.

Diplomatic gossip had it that in 1939 Hitler called Ciano to Salzburg and told him the German army would march into Poland and ... believed the war could be confined to the east. Ciano, speaking for Mussolini, warned Hitler the war could not be localized, that he "couldn't get away with" another aggression.

"You ass," Hitler was reported to have stormed. Thereupon Ciano delivered Mussolini's message that Italy would not come into the war immediately, because she was not prepared. Hitler never forgot—or forgave.

Movements Obscure

Ciano's movements after the resignation of Mussolini were obscure. He variously was reported to have escaped from Italy with his wife and children after being held prisoner in his apartment in Rome.

But last October it was reported from Switzerland he had been located, disguised by a heavy beard, living in seclusion near Verona. German troops took him in custody and he was brought before Mussolini who in a stormy scene accused him of "deserting Italy in the hour of her trial."

Ciano was born March 18, 1903, at Livorno, the son of Admiral E. Costano Ciano, Conte de Cortellazzo, an Italian naval hero and early-day Fascist.

He was in the Italian diplomatic service in Shanghai when he met the dashing daughter of Mussolini, Edda, to whom he became engaged in short order. His rise was meteoric after that.

He became foreign minister of foreign affairs in 1936, having previously held the ministry of press and propaganda. The success of il duce's Ethiopian campaign, which presumably took him to the height of his popularity with the Italians, was due largely to Ciano's organization of propaganda.

Had Fling at War

Ciano flew a bombing plane in Ethiopia and commanded a bombing squadron against the Greeks in World War II.

At the height of his power Ciano often was spoken of as a possible successor to Mussolini. He became known as the playboy of the Fascist regime, with a weakness for blonde bathing beauties who frequented his pavilion at a Roman beach resort, Ostia, where he held most of his diplomatic conferences.

Farm Bureau Convenes, Criticizes Subsidy Plans

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Dec. 6—The American Farm Bureau Federation opened its annual convention today with a series of conferences and a statement by its president, Edward A. O'Neal, that "farmers are more firmly opposed to subsidies than ever before."

O'Neal and other member federations were practically unanimous in condemning subsidies at a time when consumer income "is the highest in history and national leaders are in mortal fear that the pressure of the greatest accumulation of unspent funds in history may smash the control measures and engulf the nation with a wild orgy of inflation."

St. Mary Drops Tough Cage Game As Harpster Wins 31 to 30 in Final Seconds

BY CHARLES ELLIOTT

After three relatively uneventful four-minute quarters of basketball, spectators needs began to run back and forth at great speed to keep up with a fast-changing scene unfolding between the baskets of the two contesting teams, Marion St. Mary and Harpster, at the Trinity A. C. gymnasium Saturday night.

The well-versed Harpster team finally won, 31 to 30, but the issue was not decided until four, maybe two or three, seconds before the final gun. After

After this basket, Harpster took the ball upfloor but before any serious threat could be made at the St. Mary basket, there was a scramble in the middle of the floor for the ball. Harpster was awarded the ball out-of-bounds. The clock was running its course with a shade more than five seconds left. Somerlot Perry shook himself loose and arrived under the basket, where he took an accurate pass from a team-mate and dropped through the tell-tale markers.

Coach Kenny Somerlot's Class B Harpster quintet, which was favored over the Irish because of a much better opportunity for thorough practices, had the upper hand for three-fourths of the game. The Irish, mentored by Lazo McCrate, found it difficult to find shooting range and made only four of 13 foul-line attempts, in addition to missing most of their basket tosses. Harpster sank through 10 of 21 free throws, which was the deciding factor in the downfall of the Irish. A total of 34 personal fouls were called by Referee Burchett.

First St. Mary Loss

The defeat was the first for a St. Mary athletic team since the 1942-43 basketball season. This fall the Irish gridders went through an undefeated season and the Parochial basketeers posted an opening Thanksgiving eve win over Cardington, 64 to 21. For Harpster it was the third victory of the season as opposed to one setback, a 37 to 34 overtime loss to Richwood earlier in the week.

McGinnis opened point-making shortly after the opening center tip-off by sinking a one-handed side shot. Harpster quickly came back with a two-pointer by Center Mills, who then missed a foul try. The commission of the foul was by Irish Guard Pat Bray on the basket. Steve Norris, senior guard, looped on a one-hander from the side, to give the Irish a 4 to 2 margin. Harpsted didn't stay in the rear for long, however, as three successive baskets were registered by the visitors. Guard Lumberson made the first on a set shot from the side. Perry the second on a pivot try, and Mills the third on a dribble-in. Totals at the end of the initial frame read 8 to 6 Harpester's way after Bob Tobin, clicked on a pivot shot under the basket, near the end of the period.

Guard Shenfer, who led Harpster scoring with 10 points, missed a foul try at the outset of the first quarter, but compensated with sucker shot. Jim Lawler, tall Irish center, checked in his only point of the evening, at this stage, with a free throw. McGinnis failed to make a charity toss. Sheaffer added a one-pointer for the invaders. Harpster Forward Lawson put through a free throw, which seemed to be very much in vogue in the second quarter. McGinnis, checked by cautious Harpster guarding for the first half, pushed through a sucker shot. Sheaffer concluded second quarter scoreboard-tabulating with a good flip from the foul circle.

Opens Second Quarter

The second half opened with Mr. Sheaffer, confidently making good a long set shot from near mid-floor. Larry Leser, lanky junior, laid in two points, and after being fouled on the same play, twirled in a free throw. The foul-parade took up where it left off in the third quarter and Perry made a one-pointer. McGinnis followed with charity throw for St. Mary and three foul tries were then missed, one by McGinnis, and two by Lawson of Harpster. Two for-nothing underhanders that lashed the net string were recorded by Sheaffer and Lawson of the visiting outfit. Graham, Harpster guard, ended the scoring-monopoly by foul throws by making a dribble-in. Within a few seconds, however, Mills tallied on a free throw, three of which were then missed. Norris scored for St. Mary on an overhand side shot. Sheaffer clipped off a basket from 10 feet out. St. Mary in a little contest of give and take, then took its turn with Bob Tobin netting a hook shot from the side. Graham ran up two points for Harpster on a right hand archer.

Then began the fourth quarter, plentiful in excitement and with not so many fouls. Lawson drew first scoring blood on a free throw. Leser from side bounced in a one-hander, which made it 28 to 23 in favor of the invaders. Perry made it 29 with a charity toss.

McGinnis, who had been pulled from lineup because of three foul commissions, was hustled back into the game to try and pull a supposedly lost game out of the fire. He certainly tried and almost performed that service for the Irish. His first point came on a free throw.

The initial McGinnis basket was a pivot shot from the side. Then Johnny Gray, substitute guard, unwound with a floor-long pass to McGinnis, who put in a sucker shot. The score was 29 to 28. McGinnis gave St. Mary 30 on a one-hander but seconds later came Perry's game-winning basket.

The B. B. reserves whipped the Harpster Jay Vees, in a preliminary 26 to 21, to remain undefeated. A fifteen point second half was mainly responsible for the victory. Tom Moran and Bob Winterstoller shared scoring honors with seven points each.

A.A.U. Votes To Expand U. S. Sports Program

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 6 — A greatly expanded program to provide a commissioner for each of 15 sports in each association was authorized by the Amateur Athletic Union in its week-end convention here which also reelected L. D. Benedetto of New Orleans as president.

Only one commissioner has had charge of all sports previously.

The A.A.U. also opened the way for city, sectional and county championships although up to now no smaller group than a district association has held such events.

A third part of the program calls for providing physical fitness and aptitude tests for all residents.

Selection of next year's convention city was postponed after receipt of invitations from Asheville, N. C., Lake Placid, N. Y., New Orleans, Buffalo and Cleveland. James Rhodes, Columbus, O., mayor-elect, was elected third vice president.

Friday's 32 to 14 victory over Delaware Willis made the Chief Executives look formidable but with Earl Hickman's North quintet, the locals are expected to have a definitely more closely-matched game. The 1942-43 Polar Bears were blessed with 6 ft. 5 in. Butler, gigantic high-scoring center, who was one of Columbus' most highly-regarded courtmen. Butler has left North via the Cap and Gown route but still the Bears have some potentially top-notch material. Only one lettterman, Ralph Pryor, who played against Harding in both contests last year, will return to face the Prexies tomorrow. However, North has six other cagers who have had considerable varsity experience. They are Capt. Jack Jennings, brothers Dale and Dave Bonnie, Jesse Van Fossen, George Williams and Bill Donnally.

Six-foot Three Center

Jennings, tentative starting center, is the team's altitude man with his six feet three inches. The two Bonnie brothers, both stand-out gridders for the North eleven this fall, were used in substitute roles against Harding last year and gained the reputation locally of being fast adept ball handlers and floormen.

Bexley, always a Central district cage power, tangles with the Prexies Friday night. The Lions opened their season last week with a 34 to 33 victory over Columbus Aquinas, another perennial thughie. Coach Carlton H. Smith has six lettermen on this year's Bexley squad, Bill Davies, George Spencer, Jim Geist, Herb Pollock, Sanford Stern and Bill Barrett. Last year Bexley defeated Harding 37 to 29 and then went on to win fourteen straight games, before being upset by Delaware in the district event.

St. Mary, after dropping a 31 to 30 heart-breaker to Harpster Saturday night, is forced to assume the role of underdog in its tilt with Lima St. Rose at Lima tomorrow night. The St. Rose outfit will be seeking revenge for the 32 to 0 whitewashing administered by the Irish during the 1943 football season.

Football Tendency This Year Toward Wide Open Game

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 — [illegible] the T formation and a tendency toward a wide open "[illegible]" offense were two of the trends of the 1943 football world as reported by The Associated Press in a survey of [illegible] coaches, sports writers and officials.

The fans retained the grid game with varying degrees of enthusiasm, ranging from the wild hysteria according to use of the Notre Dame-Army and Penn-Navy games to a general apathy in a few sections of the nation where poorly matched teams or lack of competition stifled interest.

Every section polled reported that the players and student bodies retained more than usual interest. One sidelight on that phase came from Arkansas A. and M. to the effect that there was absolutely no dissension among the players as is sometimes true in normal times with many colleges who play subsidized football.

Plans for 1944 were described as indefinite. All schools that played this fall expected to field some kind of a club next year although there was little downright optimism. Most expect a general levelling-off process as the navy V-12 stars leave for active duty. It was pointed out that the new V-12 will not have the years of early collegiate grid training that the '43 crop enjoyed.

Andy Kerr of Colgate expressed the coach's viewpoint of the general situation when he said, "we tried to develop a varied offense without using any more plays than necessary." In most cases the defense suffered.

The old dependable off-tackle play popped up a little more often than usual and such a mossy chestnut as the statue of liberty came out of the bag with surprising consistency. Coaching staffs, limited in practice time, were forced to stress offense and let the defense take care of itself.

Landis Declines To Clear Cox

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 — Must [illegible] for [illegible] league fans [illegible] the testimony at the [illegible] William D. Cox hearing here Saturday led to caustic Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis of baseball, former president of the Phillies, might without success [illegible] Cox of the charges he set [illegible] games.

The testimony brought out many hitherto undisclosed details in the turbulent 1943 career of the Philadelphia, N. Y. Yorker who purchased the Phillies last January and on Nov. 25 was banned from the game for life by Landis.

The reason, Cox testified, that he stated to Landis on Nov. 3 and Nov. 6 and to the public in a radio broadcast Nov. 25 that he "made a few small and sentimental bets on my team to win" was because it was part of "an ill-advised plan to play detective to smoke out a certain group of Philadelphians in the organization about whom I was suspicious."

"The truth is he did not bet," Cox's attorney, Lloyd Paul Stryker, declared. "When Cox first saw you, Judge (on Aug. 14) he told the truth. He did not bet. * * * In the absence of proof the least that can be done is to exonerate him of the charge of betting on games * * * I appeal to you * * * [illegible] to [illegible] him [illegible] that is predicated solely [illegible] advised admissions. He [illegible] added to let matters [illegible] when he read the papers [illegible] good named gentleman asked for this hearing."

At the end of the [illegible] long hearing, however, Landis declared, "there is no proof [illegible] Cox. * * * there [illegible] impossibility to [illegible] with the reputation [illegible] on Nov. 3 and Nov. [illegible]

On those two dates [illegible] made "approximately bets of from $25 to $50 on the Phillies to win [illegible] received on May 21 [illegible] learned of the rule [illegible] ting.

N. Y. Giants Hang Another Defeat On Washington

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Dec. 6—When the New York Giants decided they had the Washington Redskins' number they weren't kidding. And if they still have it next Sunday—and the Sunday after—they'll be playing the Chicago Bears in pro football's championship game the day after Christmas in Chicago.

The Giants now have beaten the Redskins eight times and tied them once in their last 11 encounters. The latest, of course, was yesterday, when they snapped a 14 to 10 defeat on the Washingtons and prevented the Redskins for the second straight week from clinching the eastern division title they once appeared to have in a walkaway.

And if the New York can do it again next Sunday, they'll deadlock the Redskins for the eastern crown and force a playoff on Dec. 19, the date originally set for the imagined meeting of the Redskins and Bears in Chicago.

Of course if Washington suddenly gets its bearing after two straight losses, the Redskins will take an undisputed eastern crown and go ahead with the game against the Bears Dec. 19.

At least the threat of a three-way tie for the eastern title was averted when the Philli-Pitt Eagles were eliminated by a 38-28 loss to the Green Bay Packers, in the final game for both teams. Don Hutson caught two touchdown passes in the final period to dash the Eagles' hopes.

Playing with an injured hand he caught in a taxi door, Hutson also kicked a second period field goal and booted five conversions for a day's total of 20 points and a season's mark of 117. He boosted his various all-time records to 83 touchdown passes caught, 86 touchdowns scored, 641 points tallied, 384 passes caught for 6,310 yards, and 35 consecutive league games in which he scored one or more points.

LIQUOR STORE TELEPHONE NUMBERS TO BE LISTED

Put Back after Two Weeks To Protect "Normal Buyer."

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 6—Liquor Director Don Fisher announced today telephones of all state retail liquor stores would be listed immediately for public use.

These telephones were ordered unlisted two weeks ago in order to protect the normal buyer from abuses by stooge buyers, bootleggers and others who were using the telephones to determine truck schedules, arrival of merchandise and brands listed for sale, Fisher said.

State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson said last week he would make public all secret numbers when telephone bills were presented to his office for auditing this week.

Fisher commented that restricting numbers inconvenienced a certain percentage of normal buyers who were rightfully using the telephones to determine whether their particular store had in stock the merchandise which they desired to purchase. So to avoid this inconvenience I am ordering all telephone numbers relisted."

JONES TRYING TO SAVE SUBSIDY PLAN

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—Administration leaders who are supporting the subsidy program have called War Food Administrator Marvin Jones before the senate banking committee in an attempt to save the federal payment plan. The committee is openly hostile to the program which President Roosevelt says he needs to help down retail food prices. The bill before the committee—extending life of the commodity credit corporation (CCC) but ending food subsidies—has been supported by the farm bloc and administration leaders hoped Jones might be able to convince subsidy-opponents a compromise is necessary to control the cost of living.

The senate finances committee, winding up public hearings on the $2,140,000,000 added revenue bill hears from Commerce Secretary Jones and high war, navy, and maritime commission officials today on the war contract renegotiation law which Chairman George, Democrat of Georgia, says should be repealed. The house bill, as it reached the senate committee after house approval, contains amendments to the renegotiation law, which liberalize it to some extent.

MAY CALL SOLONS ON SOLDIER VOTING

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 6—Gov. John W. Bricker indicated today he might call a special session of the legislature to take up the matter of soldier voting.

The governor said he would await completion of congressional action on the question and then study the Ohio law in the light of any federal regulations.

Then, if he considers Ohio law inadequate, the legislature might be called to make adjustments, the governor said. He added the soldier vote would be the only question permitted the legislature to take up. This answered some quarters who have held that action was necessary now upon the sales tax, the liquor shortage and civil service regulations.

Bricker commented there was nothing the legislature could do about liquor. "There is just a scarcity, and that's all," he said.

Bricker's remarks on the soldier vote followed receipt of a request by State Rep. A. Lee Fair, Democratic whip, that the Ohio law be amended.

Fair in a telegram to the governor said the present Ohio election laws are inadequate to "accomplish a free, full and convenient opportunity of franchise" for those in the armed service.

$1,000 Check
Is a $1,000 Punch at the Japs
with $1,000 in War Bonds

When we sold our home we called Col. F. E. Williams for an estimate of how much we might receive for our furnishings at a public sale. As we did not know much about auctions we asked Col. Williams if he would give us a guarantee, which he did. We did not ask for a contract, we took his word for a guarantee of $1,000 net to us. Then the Ordnance Plant laid off several hundred people. Some thought our sale wouldn't go over. Mr. Williams came out to our home the day before the sale and told us not to worry, that he had promised us $1,000 net and that we would get our money. And when the sale was over we received a check from Col. F. E. Williams, our Friendly Auctioneer, for the sum of $1,000—and we traded the check for a $1,000 War Bond, so thanks a million to Col. Williams and his following of fine people who help him to make his sales successful.

PARLEY NEWS CHEERS STOCKS

Number of Issues Chalk Up Gains, Led by Firms in War Work.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 — Stocks led by so-called war miants, sat up and took recovery nourishment in today's market as Wall Street expressed confidence the communique from the "Big Three" meeting at Teheran, due later in the day, would have plenty of bullish implications.

In addition to further good dividends and earnings statements, some buying was inspired by a mild revival of inflationary thinking based on another jump in major commodities. Wheat at Chicago hit a new seasonal high.

Prominent gainers included U. S. Rubber, Goodrich, Goodyear, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Sperry, Chrysler, General Motors, Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, Pullman, J. I. Case, International Harvester and Allied Chemical. American Distilling backed down in the wake of an early jump.

PLANE EXPLODES AT COLUMBUS; 4 KILLED

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 6 — A Flying Fortress exploded on a taxiing strip as it was being warmed up for a routine training flight from Lockbourne airbase today, killing all four men aboard.

The post's press relations office said the explosion's origin was of a "very unusual type" and a board of officers had begun an investigation. The blast tore the ship apart near the center of the fuselage.

The dead were identified as: Capt. John R. King, 26, Trumansburg, N. Y.; Lt. Lawrence A. Rock, 21, Detroit; Lt. Ruben M. Quaglini, 23, Ludlow, Mass.; Pfc. Nevin D. Rhine, 22, Mackeyville, Pa.

All died outright except King, who succumbed in a hospital an hour later without regaining consciousness.

U. S. AIR FORCES PUSH ENEMY TOLL TO 13,500

Gen. Arnold Discloses Magnitude of Force, 2,300,000 Men.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—The Army Air Forces, now numbering more men than all U. S. branches were able to move into Europe in the first World war, have destroyed or damaged 13,500 enemy planes since the Pearl Harbor attack two years ago.

Swelled to 2,300,000 men, the air arm has flown more than 225,000 individual plane flights, fired 41,000,000 rounds of ammunition and chewed up 2,000,000 gallons of gasoline in that time.

General H. H. Arnold disclosed the magnitude of the air operations in an article written for the Army and Navy Journal issue dedicated to the second anniversary of Pearl Harbor.

are part of that purpose. * * *

"America is proud of you and proud of what you are doing in this distant place. I wish that great numbers of our people could see this work of getting necessary equipment and supplies through to our ally who has had very heavy losses but who is kicking the Nazi hordes. And so I am on my way home and I wish I could take all of you with me.

"The people back home know what you are doing and how well you are doing it. They, too, are proud of you.

"All I can say is, may you get back home to our good America just as soon as you can.

"Goodbye and good luck."

In a speech to ambulatory cases at a camp hospital, he said: "I landed about 10 days ago over in Morocco and this is the nearest thing to the United States that I have seen yet.

"I wish the people back home could all see what we are doing here and how well we are doing it.

"I want you boys, all of you, to remember that back at home we are thinking about you. I know you wish to get out of the hospital as soon as possible and come back to the United States just as fast as we can lick the Nazis.

ALLIED BOMBERS IN RAIDS OVER FRANCE

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Dec. 6 — Allied air fleets apparently changing tactics to confuse Nazi defenders turned from shattering German cities yesterday to occupied France, losing heavy and medium bombers and fighter planes in a smashing blow at enemy targets.

American Flying Fortresses concentrated on unspecified targets in the Nazi-dominated country for the first time in more than two months, and U. S. medium Marauder bombers and Thunderbolt and Lightning fighters also played a prominent part in the daylight assaults.

The Eighth airforce lost 11 heavy bombers against the destruction of 11 Nazi fighters during the day, but the crews of two of the wrecked bombers were known to be safe. One allied fighter was lost.

Networks Arranging Christmas Features

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 6—Christmas cheer in allotments of an hour, two hours and more is to be made available by the networks as part of their observance of the second wartime Santa Claus day.

Of the longer programs so far listed, a 'round the world two and one-half hour broadcast is planned by NBC for 1 p. m. Christmas day.

Another two and one-half hour afternoon presentation for the Blu will take the form of greetings from the spotlight bands. Details still are under consideration.

CBS will be on at 3 with a two-hour production similar to its Thanksgiving one, with Robert Young as M. C. again. Among the expected guests are Jack Benny, Judy Garland, Alice Faye and Phil Baker.

An hour's special, headed by Fred Allen, Edgar Bergen and Bob Burns, will be heard on CBS Dec 21 at 9 p. m.

ADJUSTMENTS CAUSE GRAIN PRICE JUMP

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Dec. 6 — Upward adjustment of the corn ceiling price and temporary freezing of oats and barley at the highest prices prevailing between Nov. 29 and Dec. 3 today threw the grain trade into confusion, in the mid-st of which all prices advanced sharply, wheat and rye entering new high ground.

Feature of the market was the trade in oats and barley. December oats at one point was carried to the temporary ceiling price of 82 cents per bushel and deferred months to as much as 4 cents over the previous close. Barley prices showed similar gains.

TURKISH ROLE IS WATCHED BY NAZIS

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Dec. 6 — Turkey's future role in the European war was the subject of intensive press speculation today following an assertion by a German news agency yesterday that Turkish President Ismet Inonu had conferred with President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill in Cairo Saturday.

The conference, about which a communique is expected Wednesday or Thursday "after the return of the Turkish statesman," indicated the military-making Iran conference of the chiefs of state of Britain and the United States to Russian Premier Stalin, the Nazi news agency Transocean said, quoting Ankara dispatches.

The German said Inonu was accompanied by Numan Menemencioglu, Turkish foreign minister, and the general secretary of the Turkish foreign ministry. They asserted also that Emir Mansur, son of King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia, and Emir Faisal, nephew of the king, arrived in Cairo Saturday, presumably "to take part in some Cairo conference."

The German news agency DNB said no change in Turkish policy was expected as a result of the alleged conference, but the Nazi-controlled Vichy radio, significantly perhaps, quoted Franz Von Papen, Nazi ambassador to Turkey, as saying on his arrival at Istanbul from Berlin, "Germany is anxious to continue its friendly collaboration with Turkey so that this country can be saved the horrors of war."

FINAL VICTORY

which they must surely realize is impossible.

"We came here with hope and determination," the declaration signed by the Three said. "We leave here friends in fact, in spirit and in purpose."

Some Washington authorities said these two sentences represented one of the major accomplishments of the conference, since when it began there was no assurance such a high degree of unity and friendship would result.

Information Exchanged

Prior to the meeting in Teheran, Britain and the United States had exchanged with Russia information as to military plans but there had been no previous meeting of the high commands of the great forces encircling Germany.

The principal question of timing at last week's conference, therefore, concerned selection of the period in which to launch the final crushing offensives against continental Europe. So far as weather conditions are concerned, military experts say the invasion can be started either late this winter, or early next summer.

An all-out attack on all fronts this winter unquestionably would be designed to produce victory by spring by taking advantage of the morale effect of the winter's battle reverses and punishing aerial attacks on the German homeland. Otherwise conservative estimates indicate little prospect of victory until next fall.

The opening of a secondary front in southern Europe, probably in the Balkans but possibly in southern France, might be undertaken as a preliminary to invasion of northern France and Belgium. It would have the effect of forcing the Germans to disperse their forces, or suffer further defeats and losses of important territory.

Hence the significance of the announcement of plans for operations "from the east, west and south." The inclusion of the "south" might conceivably refer to the present Italian campaign.

But because of the mountain barriers in northern Italy, the peninsula is not regarded as an avenue of approach to Germany proper. On the other hand an invasion of the Balkans would jeopardize raw materials and strategic positions vital to the defense of Germany.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

I DID not dare look at Dicky as Philip Veritzen capitulated to my father's dictum about Stephen Redfield, and I knew that he also was carefully averting his eyes from mine. It was "not on the free list" for anyone to show amusement at Philip Veritzen, but I was sure that my husband was having as much trouble with his muscles as I was with mine over the spectacle of the temperamental and arrogant impresario being tamed by my father's quiet but forceful will power.

Spencer Grateful

"Thank you, Philip." My father's voice held sincere gratitude at the other's surrender, and I knew that one of the hurdles in front of him had been successfully taken.

Veritzen leaned forward in his chair, and his manner told me that, having once yielded, he would make my father's victory a sweeping one.

"Let me be sure of just what I am to do," he said. "Redfield is to come to me—when—"

"Within the next few minutes," my father replied. "Margaret is going over to his apartment as soon as Hanson reports to me that he has come in. I am giving him no chance to get in touch with Milner first. By the time she and I get through with Redfield, he will be ready to come to you and offer his resignation. You will know, from what he says, what line to take. The only thing I stipulate is that you permit him to think he can come back but you will never have to redeem your promise. I can guarantee you that."

Stony Face

Philip Veritzen's face suddenly looked as if it were stone instead of flesh.

"I am resting on that guarantee," he said.

Then he rose from his chair.

"If I am to receive Redfield so soon," he went on, "I had better be getting back to my apartment. He will come there, I suppose."

"Of course," my father replied. "He scarcely would ask you to come to his."

"I should think not," the impresario said loftily. Then he unbent and made his adieu cordial, and his exit with his usual unhurried grace.

As soon as he was gone, my father went to the telephone and called Hanson, the new manager of the hotel.

Speaks to Hanson

"I want to be sure that our friend has no chance to speak to our new tenant before I give you the word," he said. "On the pretext that Mr. Veritzen wishes you to consult him about several things before he leaves the hotel, can you guarantee to keep him busy until I phone you that it will be all right to let him go his own way? You may be sure that he will be sufficiently watched. What's that? Good! Then you will send for him right away? Fine! One thing more. When I telephone you it will be to give you a message to the effect that you need not hold the reservation I made for my friend from Philadelphia, that he is not coming. If you answer me along that line, our friend will not suspect anything if he is in the office and hears you answering my call. Then you can let him go. Thank you, and good bye."

He hung up the receiver, and turned to us with a quizzical smile.

Reports Conversation

"Either Heaven helps us because our cause is just," he said, "or the Devil takes care of his own. At any rate, Veritzen has just told Hanson that he must get all data from Milner before his departure. Now, if we can bring Milner to the office immediately after our conversation is related, the game is ours. We have only to wait until Hanson has worked in that Redfield has arrived, and we will be rid of Veritzen forever."

He arose quickly to his feet and stretched. Then he removed his arms from above his head, and bringing them briskly down again, he left them at the top of their back, a familiar gesture to me, for it is one he frequently uses when some action of a problematic kind is to follow.

"I'm wondering where Milner means to go when he leaves here this afternoon, or soon. He has gone but one call on Redfield from the outside—he hasn't found any reason to go anywhere. But of course he has scarcely had time to do much beforehand, and I imagine he may not care to go to another hotel anyhow. The managers know each other and this sudden quitting might be hard to explain. Of course I'm having him trailed, but I would feel better if I knew just where he was going."

"Do you suppose—" I began diffidently, and Dicky interrupted me with a slap of his hand against his knee.

"Ten to one, dad," he said, "our one and only Amateur Watson has the answer!"

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Use of Sulfas

"I have lived through a good many medical fads," said my old friend, Dr. Adrian Gibbs. "And I have come to the conclusion that a scientific physician is a real rarity. Most of them practice by ear. They hear about something at a lunch table and begin to use it.

"My first fad was the strychnine fad. When I started to practice medicine strychnine was the drug every doctor had to give every patient. What has become of that? I haven't heard of a dose of strychnine being given for 20 years.

"Then there was allergy, then the endocrines, then vitamins, and now it is the sulfa drugs.

"Not that these things are not all right in their place. We need vitamins and most of us get enough in our food. But to dish out a handful of vitamin tablets to anybody whether they have arthritis or pyorrhea or bad eyesight without making any kind of examination or considering what would be use for the patient is neither science or sense.

"The same thing is happening with the sulfa drugs. They are very valuable, even magical, in their action on certain diseases. But the number of those diseases is limited. And to use them any which away for any old thing is not only unfair to the patient, but may be downright dangerous.

"One of the latest ways I notice they are(n) sing them is as a nasal spray. One report says this methed is good in certain forms of chronic sinus disease. And another that the sprays are good for the common cold. Other reports say they are no good for any of these things. All the reports are from equally eminent men.

"What can you believe? Perhaps they are good for certain forms of chronic sinus disease. The chances that they would be any good for the common cold are very faint, because the cold is of a virus type.

"And they may be dangerous. I predict that within a number of years we will have given a period of weeks in the penitentiary out-patient department to a fourth of the users of sulfa drugs, and it will be found that a number of them have developed serious kidney...

"There is no real use of sulfa drugs except in certain specific conditions. Also in a small proportion of the cases of certain kinds of vaginal infection a form of sulfa...

"There may be some reason in that sort of case to use a useful experiment carried on, but I would not even do that for the sulfa at a better established.

"They are being used also in dermatology ... impetigo, and other skin infections, and I have my friend, Dr. Harold Cole, in Cleveland, goes for 'sulfa ointment' in such conditions and his word is good enough for me."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. T. K.: What are theraeutic tubes which are described as containing radium bearing salts and leave the blood to take no more oxygen?

Answer: There is nothing more dangerous than the indiscriminate use of radium salts. Recall the cases of the watch dial workers who painted luminescent figures on watch dials, moistening the brush on their tongues. They all died radium deaths.

R. R.: I have a burning sensation in my tongue, stomach and intestines. What is the cause and treatment of this?

Answer: It might be caused by a number of things, one of which is anemia, and one of which is vitamin deficiency. You should have a careful examination as most of these things are very easy to cure.
